AND MINDEN RECORDER

Vol. 98 No. 10 Wednesday, October 17, 1979 "The voice of the Highlands" 14 pages 25 cents

Chamber stands firm on its right to name directors to COTA

Central Ontario Tourist Association (COTA) by-laws which call for the appointments of members to the board from area tourist organizations, including the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, may be illegal under the Human Rights Code, a Peterborough lawyer has told COTA's board.

The by-laws, drafted in cooperation with the Ministry of Industry and Tourism, allow each member tourist council to appoint two delegates to COTA's board. The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce (one of six tourist area bodies belonging to COTA) appoints its manager, Bob Stinson, and one Chamber director to fill the two seats.

But the system is being challenged for the first time, this year, because a former Chamber delegate to the board, Bill Smith of Harcourt, who is no longer on the Chamber's board of directors, wants to continue sitting on COTA.

A three-man committee which includes Stinson, was formed at the request of COTA manager, George Lyons, to look into the matter. The committee met with a lawyer in Peterborough Friday, and was told that at least six of the association's by-laws - those dealing with appointments and membership - are "questionable". Stinson said in an interview Tuesday. Committee members will submit individual reports on the matter to Lyons, and will then meet with the COTA chairman to hammer out a proposal to put before the board.

The local Chamber manager's report will advocate conforming to the dictates of the existing COTA by-laws.

The by-laws now state that

Bob Stinson, manager of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce summed up the year's accomplishments at the group's annual meeting last Wednesday. Last year's president, John Hogg, right, will continue in the position for another year. Highlights of the evening included the presentation of the Highlander of the Year award and the election of a new board of directors.

New programs will increase workload Next year critical Chamber is told

The next two years will be critical for the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, according to its president. Addressing the group's annual meeting last Wednesday, John Hogg said the Chamber has "started a lot of programs, many not visible yet, that will increase significantly, the demands on the board and on the management of the Chamber."

Exact nature of those programs was not revealed in the speech, but in an interview later, Hogg said most are at "the concept stage" and are related to increased emphasis on promoting the county in various markets by various methods, including a field signing program.

"Haliburton...does not have the identity it might have," especially among individuals and companies whose relocation and expansion plans might be linked to an industrial development program, the Chamber president said, adding that emphasis will be placed on improving that situation.

Overall, Hogg told the annual meeting, "the Chamber has had a good year, really. Generally, we are pleased with our progress."

He stressed, however, that the Chamber "could do more and could do better."

"The Chamber's basic objective is to promote economic development," Hogg said, "and it has two aspects."

First of these is "to encourage increased recreational development," through "improvement of the advertising vehicles available to...members," increased use of "trained professionals in designing advertising and promotional campaigns," placing emphasis on winter promotion, "developing new forms and sources of financing," development of "county-wide promotion and publicity campaigns," and working with the economic development commission "to encourage new tourist attractions," the Chamber president said.

Second aspect of the Chamber's activities, "is to work to encourage the development of appropriate industrial and manufacturing activity in the county." Main vehicle for this activity, Hogg said, is the Economic Development Commission, about which the Chamber is "quite excited".

The general feeling among the business community is that "it has been an excellent year," economically, Hogg said. "The summer was very strong and the winter is shaping up as one of the best ever."

Hogg said energy problems have seemed so far "to work in Haliburton's favour."

"We have to find ways to

In this area, the Chamber president told the meeting, it is "easy to fall into the trap of feeling that we are somewhat isolated from the harsh realities (of)...the outside world." He stressed however, that though effects of changes may be "a little slow in coming," they will be felt in this area. To adapt to changes, Hogg said, the business people of this area "have to find ways to be better informed and more self-reliant."

Successes, failure mark Chamber year

The past twelve months have seen both successes and failures for the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce. Yet its manager remains optimistic about the future of the county and the Chamber's role in that future.

In a speech to the group's annual meeting, Chamber manager Bob Stinson told a small turnout that progress has been made in promoting the county, but that the response to some Chamber sponsored programs has been disappointing.

Among the successes, Stinson counted a crime prevention seminar held in cooperation with the Minden OPP; briefs on the possible closing of the Registry Office in Minden; the Algonquin Park master plan review; DREE funding and the need for a "framework for opportunity study"; and the Economic Development Commission, which he stressed faces an uphill battle in efforts to attract industry to the area.

"Although we are enthusiastic about the new directions this commission is taking...cautious optimism would best describe the anticipated results..." Stinson said. "Everyone agrees we need a more stable economic base - acquiring it will be a

Board of directors elected at Chamber annual meeting

Twelve people were elected to the Board of Directors of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce at the group's annual meeting last Wednesday.

John Hogg, last year's president, will serve in that capacity again this year. Hogg, owner of Mr. Fogg's restaurant in Carnarvon, has been a director of the Chamber for three years, and is also a member of the Economic Development Commission.

Jim McLean, who served as vice president last year, was also re-elected. McLean is the owner of Air Haliburton Ltd. and has served on the Chamber board for the past two years.

Dennis Waymouth was automatically appointed to the board as past president because of Hogg's decision to serve for another year as president. Waymouth is the owner of Silver Springs Cottages on Elephant Lake, near Harcourt.

Minden hits snag in bid for more road dollars

by Joe Banks

The district engineer for the Ministry of Transportation and Communications has told Anson, Hindon and Minden council that he "very much doubt(s) whether additional subsidy funds are available for allocating to your municipality," for further road maintenance costs.

The statement was made in a letter to council last week from D. A. O. White, district engineer. The letter outlines the Ministry's assessment of why the township has overspent its road budget by some $40,000.

One of the main problems the Ministry noted in the township's maintenance expenditure and subsidy report for the period ending August 31, was an increase in overhead expenditures. The letter noted that "when your municipality prepared its 1979 Road Budget, insufficient funds were allocated to allow for overhead expenditures." (Overhead includes fringe benefits, wages for the road superintendent, and clerical help). In 1978 the municipality budgeted $66,000 for overhead expenditures and Ministry subsidies provided $42,900 of that total.

White later said in a telephone interview that "reviewing their budget (submitted in March), we noted that they (the township) had only allowed $10,400 for overhead (subsidy) compared to $42,900 (overhead) subsidy last year." To date, this year, the township has spent $25,800, on overhead.

According to township clerk Elinor Burk, the figure presented to the Ministry in March for the overhead allocations "was not an accurate estimation when you consider we had spent $66,000 in 1978." In preparing the budget in previous years, the Ministry "gave us so many dollars to spend and we fiddled with the budget until it met that amount when in actual fact, we've always spent more."

Burk explained that the Ministry now wants the township to budget for the overall amount they intend to spend, and the township will get subsidy "on so much of it and the balance would just come out of the general funds of the township." In essence, the Ministry is telling the municipality that the original submissions "were out of whack," said Burk.

In the past, extra funds

Calls to dump 'a waste of money and time' Gambell says

Lutterworth wants notification of fires

The Township of Lutterworth wants the Minden Fire Department to advise them before Minden firemen respond to fire calls at Lutterworth Township dump sites.

In a letter to Anson, Hindon and Minden council,

Lutterworth, noted that two out of three calls made by the department during August were to extinguish fires at Township dump sites. The letter added that it was "further noted that neither the municipal office nor the township's chief fire warden (Stephen Fox), nor any member of council was aware of the fire calls made to the municipality's dump sites."

Council, the letter said, would "prefer" that authorization be first obtained from Lutterworth or any of the above persons before a fire call is made to a dumpsite.

Because an agreement between Lutterworth and Anson, Hindon and Minden calls for payment per trip, Lutterworth council felt such trips may have been unnecessary and not worth the expense.

Ron Gambell, Lutterworth reeve, said last week that the calls were "a waste of money and time." Normally, fire departments do not respond to fire calls to dumps because they are common and do not harm surrounding properties.

"Even the Minden Fire Department don't like to go to their own dumps," said Gambell. The dumps in question "were well back from the trees" and a trench had been dug around the circumference, so there was no danger of the flames spreading. But residents

C.K.L.Y. reporter Barbara Valli suffered serious injuries last Wednesday night when the van she was driving left Highway 35 about six miles north of Minden. Valli was returning from covering the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting at the time of the mishap.

Business people called 'complacent'

A large number of business owners in Haliburton and Minden are becoming "complacent" and most do not seem to be interested in any form of downtown revitalization.

That is the feeling of at least three representatives from business groups in both Haliburton and Minden who were asked to comment on criticism aimed at the Minden business community by councillor Stu Brandon at an Anson, Hindon and Minden council meeting last Wednesday.

"Nobody is interested in getting involved," Brandon told council. "To get the business owners around here to spend ten dollars on downtown improvement is exorbitant."

In the past, the Minden Businessmen's Association has made attempts to stimulate interest in a Business Improvement Area (B.I.A.) program, but so few people attend association meetings that nothing "concrete has ever been done," said Brandon. He told council that despite the fact that there are 140 commercial phones in Minden, only 12 business owners attended the last meeting of the Association.

"There's really nothing you can do until the people say yes," said Brandon, who noted that there have been almost no suggestions from the business community to organize any kind of a revitalization program. "It's a damn shame that more people aren't interested in improving the community."

Vince Connaughan, business owner and member of the Haliburton businessmen's ad hoc committee, agrees with Brandon's remarks, and feels the same situation exists in Haliburton.

"Try to call a businessmen's meeting here, and nobody comes. It's just the attitude."

He said "the same people do the same work all the time," and that there have been very few suggestions from any of the business people around the village to improve the appearance of the downtown core.

"Nobody wants to pitch in financially," said Easton. "And the people who participate tend to be the owners who are alright as far as money goes."

In Minden, Brandon points out, business owners expect to receive significant financial benefits as the result of "putting in a little." A B.I.A. program requires several steps before long-term benefits can be gained. Two-thirds of the businesses in the area must agree to participate before the plan can go ahead.

Because so few people have attended Association meetings, however, determining opinion on such a proposal is an impossibility, Brandon said. "We tried several methods of getting people to meetings," he said.

Once, in desperation, the Association sent out notices to advise of a meeting, and said the issues discussed could have a direct effect on taxes. Only 12 people turned up.

President of the Minden Businessmen's Association, Jerry Pillsworth, said the group has not met since June, because business owners "had too much on their minds" during the summer months. He had originally planned to organize meetings on a regular basis, believing that this would "maintain a continuity and indicate to the merchants that we were interested."

Unfortunately, Pillsworth added, "it didn't pan out." The executive on the Association is now respon-

Highlander of the Year

Carole Finn: the driving force behind the Rails' End Gallery

by Joe Banks

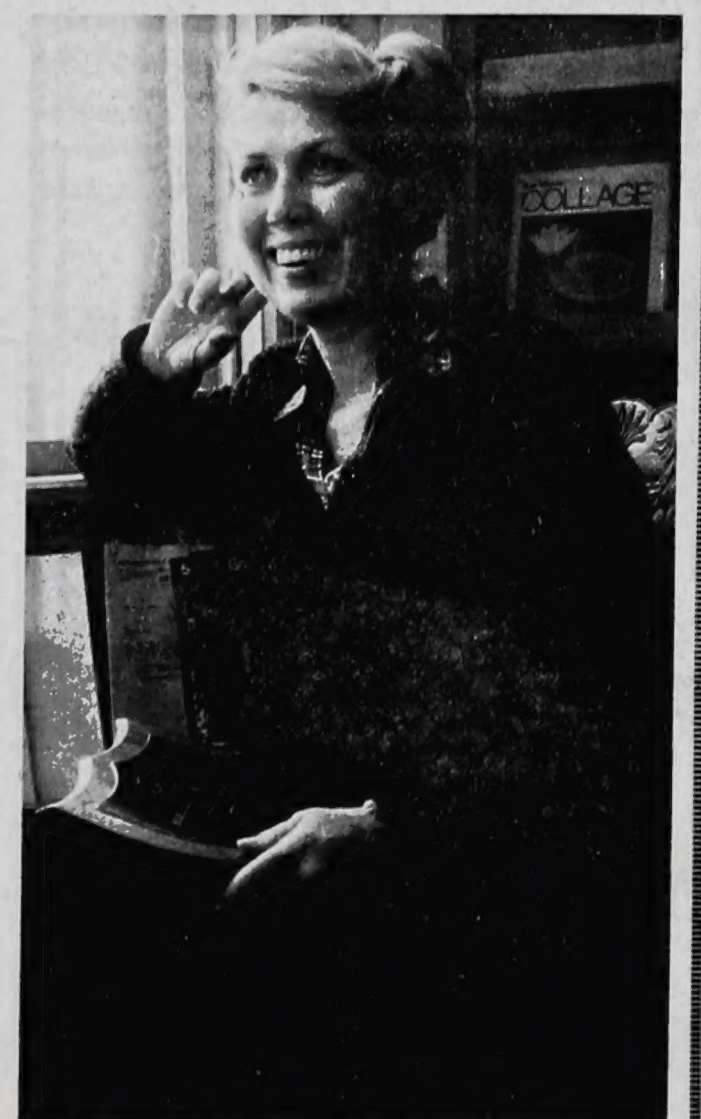

When the Rails' End Station Gallery was finally completed and officially opened this past summer, it brought to an end nearly a year of toil, frustration, and dreams for Haliburton Village and more specifically, for the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts.

At the hub of all this activity, and the main driving force behind the station's completion was Haliburton resident Carole Finn. She was instrumental in assisting the community as a whole to help fulfill the dream that she helped create. She was often persistent in her efforts to obtain materials and assistance needed to see completion of the gallery, but her peers welcomed the enthusiastic attitude.

It was for these reasons, and others, that Carole Finn was named Highlander of the Year at last week's Chamber of Commerce banquet. The award is presented to citizens of Haliburton County who have made significant contributions to the area.

The award came as a "surprise" to her, she says. Throughout the past year she has viewed the station project as a team effort, with many people working toward the station's successful completion. Asked why she felt she was chosen for the award, she modestly says "because I think it's (the award) an extension of how proud people are of the station. I think it's a way of expressing pride - I didn't work any more than anyone else involved."

She has been involved in the development of the Guild from its inception. Since 1966, when the organization was formed, membership has continued to increase until today it stands at 210, an indication of how substantially, interest in the sible for calling meetings to discuss anything pertinent "at that time". But even though notices like the one mentioned above have been sent out, the effect has been almost negligible. And because mailing the notices costs money, of which the Association has very little, "you just can't send mailings out and not have anybody turn out at meetings."

Pillsworth, are interested in belonging to the Association, but "indicated" that they weren't interested in coming to the meetings or getting involved with anything. "It just doesn't work that way in a business community. Everybody's got to work together."

He said that if the next meeting results in poor attendance again, the Association could "wind up as a committee-type of operation," whereby three or four people could aid businesses through a liaison with the business community as a whole.

"We've been through this before," Pillsworth said, "they've had businessmen's associations in this town on a number of occasions and they activate themselves for a period of time and then they slip off. And then they try to activate themselves again." He attributes the reactivation stage to the initiative or energy of "a few of the leaders who have to keep the thing going."

The only solution to the problem, Pillsworth believes, is to "take the specific businesses" in the proposed improvement area, work out a formula based on the costs of having to implement a B.I.A. program, and go to the businesses with concrete information such as taxation increases and financial requirements.

But the business people in Minden, Pillsworth says, are afraid to spend money. Because the tourist season is generally so short, "anybody with any excess cash has got to maintain that to carry the business through the slow period."

The problem, says Pillsworth, has become "extremely critical." The tourist has developed shopping habits in the community, but can abandon them by either shopping before they arrive, or knowing what they need before they depart from home. A certain number of tourists will continue to shop in the village, but as far as making the downtown area "appealing" to encourage more tourists to shop, says Pillsworth, very little is done.

"We've got top salaried employees living here," Pillsworth said, "and I think most merchants will agree that we're not getting the percentage of their shopping dollar that we should be getting."

Only part of the first phase which may not be completed by July 1 of next year is the bandshell. Construction of the shell will depend on the availability of funds before next summer, Reeve Fearrey said.

just for nothing," Gambell said. He added that driving the fire engine down highway 35 on a busy night is "dangerous" and trips to the dumps are "wasted".

Though Lutterworth already has a list of some of the persons who have phoned the dump calls, they are also requested that Anson, Hindon and Minden forward a list of the callers.

Council agreed to inform the fire chief to respond to dump calls only after permission was received from Lutterworth.

Head Lake park progressing

The first phase of the Head Lake Park (that portion south of the Drag River) is expected to be "substantially completed" by July 1 of next year, Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey said this week.

Work on the site will continue as long as possible this fall. Electrical and water services will be laid out and

"weather permitting, the pad for the fountain at the end of the main promenade will be poured," Fearrey said.

All retaining walls called for in first phase development plans have been completed, grades have been established, and topsoil for landscaping is already on the site, as is sand that will be used for a beach area.

Planting of trees and shrubs is expected to begin next week.

living near the dump just "kept calling and calling," Gambell said.

The two dump calls made in August, plus one house fire cost Lutterworth $600. The Township pays the Minden department $3,000 a year for stand-by duty, and $75 an hour for fire-fighting duties. Norland and Kinmount area fire departments also cover the southern portions of the township.

"We paid all that money for those two calls, and it was

Accomplishments in the field of advertising and promotion include the adoption of a professionally designed logo, the publication of a building trades book, work continue to aggressively upgrade our facilities and our marketing skills."

Hogg told the meeting that "the time has never been better for small business than right now," and that despite the availability of government funding and assistance, "the basic initiative and responsibility for expansion and new development lies with us, not the government."

In conclusion, the Chamber president expressed confidence that "the business people of Haliburton County, working together can meet (the) challenges," of what he termed "interesting times," "and prosper by them."

Van crashes, reporter suffers serious injury

A C.K.L.Y. radio news reporter suffered serious injuries last Wednesday night when the van she was driving went out of control on Highway 35 about six miles north of Minden.

Barbara Valli was southbound when the van left the highway, north of the Twelve Mile Lake bridge, striking a number of mail boxes and a rock cut.

She was taken to Minden Red Cross Hospital and later transferred to Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay, where her condition was listed as satisfactory last Thursday morning.

She was subsequently transferred to Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto for further tests.

The van was completely destroyed. Damage was estimated at $1000 in a single vehicle mishap in Minden Township early Thursday morning.

toward a winter book for the area, new covers for maps of the county, a successful booth and the Sportsmen Show in Toronto, the operation of information centres in Haliburton and Cardiff, and the completion of a consumer survey at the request of Minden and Haliburton business people, Stinson said.

Least successful among all ventures with which the Chamber has been involved in the past year has been the formation of business groups in Haliburton and Minden.

"Much time and effort has been put forth to provide merchants with information on which they can base a (Business Improvement Area) program, but nothing has happened," Stinson told the meeting.

"Organized development in both these towns is critical and the initiative must come from within," he said. "We have done about all we can to encourage it and have pledged our assistance in forming a program, but it must be done by and for the merchants of these towns."

Other ventures which failed to generate expected response from Chamber members included "We Treat You Royally" workshops, and a seminar on advertising set up in conjunction with Sir Sandford Fleming College, which "was cancelled for lack of interest."

On a positive note, Stinson referred to "the excellent tourist season we have just experienced."

"All indications are that this trend will continue, and bookings for this winter are already developing at a great rate," he said.

New trends are developing in the tourist industry, Stinson said, among them "a desire by travellers for more luxury in spite of price, and a trend away from advance bookings."

"If our area is going to capitalize on the increasing potential we must see that acceptable facilities are increased."

In conclusion, the Chamber manager said the organization is looking forward to "a bigger and better year than ever in 1979-80."

Ingoldsby boat ramp unlikely

Establishing a public boat launch site on Lake Kashagawigamog may be more difficult than was expected by Anson, Hindon and Minden council.

A report prepared by Dick Schell, by-law enforcement officer for the township, outlined reasons why a site proposal on County Road 2 (South Kashagawigamog Road) would not be suitable. The site, in the Ingoldsby area, was inspected in August by Schell, Bill Obee, county engineer, and Dennis Simmons from the Ministry of Natural Resources.

"The site proposed off County Road 2 and following the road allowance out into the water is too close to the curve coming from the direction of the bridge," said the report. Schell also pointed out that the original road allowance would be out in the lake several feet, and in order to facilitate parking, the lake would have to be filled 50 to 60 feet along the county road and out into the water another 50 feet minimum.

"Therefore," the report added, "it was felt that this location should be reconsidered and a new location sought for a public boat ramp on Kashagawigamog."

Another proposed site across the lake, said the report, would present similar problems with parking.

"This sight is where this same road allowance would hit the shore on the opposite side of the lake and...is known as Pine Point."

Guild has grown. When the Guild sought and received permission to use the old Haliburton railway station as their new learning and cultural centre from the Municipality of Dysart et al last year, "an aura" of excitement and motivation surrounded Guild members. No one was more affected by the excitement than Finn.

She says she originally became involved because of "the excitement of being able to help out in something that you could see would benefit everyone in the community." "Working with people" was the most inspiring aspect of Finn's labours, and she soon found that the effect snowballed. Other people began dedicating time and skills, working toward a rapid and successful completion of a complicated project. "People fed people," Finn says.

The "timing" of the Guild's plans, and those of the municipality fitted perfectly. The Guild was looking for more space to expand their growing programs, which would involve servicing Haliburton County culturally and educationally. Dysart et al had to find a use for the abandoned railway Minden for the past few years have now moved to in and around Haliburton, directly and indirectly volunteered their time and effort to follow up on the concept the Guild had developed. The building, they decided, would not be a retail outlet but a learning centre first and foremost.

This is an ideal, says Finn, that the Guild will maintain for the future of the Raily's End Station Gallery. Obviously, its location will attract people to the village, and the gallery will contribute to an increased awareness of fine arts in the county, but these were not goals that motivated Carol Finn. She simply wanted "to get it done".

But while working to complete the station project, a personal ideal of the protection of older, still existing, links with past Canadian life influenced her. Because the railway has such an "aura" about it, the station's destruction would have been an unfortunate mistake, she says.

"It's good to have something like that still here, unchanged. That's what makes little towns and villages unique."

But Carole Finn is modest, and talks first about others who were involved in the project. She speaks particularly well of the men who first turned the dirt around the building a year ago. The station brings out a pride for those who worked on it, and became "something special." Enthusiasm was common.

And though she would not admit it, Finn contributed substantially to this enthusiasm. She insists she was chosen as Highlander of the Year as an "extension" of the pride people felt for the building. With the bulk of the pressure from the project now gone, Carole Finn examines the past year as a year of dedication from many people. The award is a reflection on their efforts, she believes. "It's really a prize for everybody."

Trailer tips, damage $16,500

Damage was estimated at $16,500 when a tractor trailer dump tipped onto its side while it was being unloaded near the Golf Course Road in Minden last Thursday morning.

Robert Sears of Orillia, owner and operator of the truck, had backed it onto what appeared to be level ground, and had begun dumping the load when the dump trailer tipped onto its right side, lifting the left side of the tractor off the ground and causing extensive damage to the fifth wheel and attachment point for the hydraulic piston.

A volunteer crew used a backhoe and shovels to clear the box of its load of sand so it could be righted by a tow truck.

Damage was estimated at $16,500 when this dump truck turned onto its side while unloading near Golf Course Road in Minden. Here, truck owner Robert Sears of Orillia looks on as a tow truck rights the tractor and trailer.

Barbara Bolin, director of the Haliburton Campus of Sir Sandford Fleming College, was re-elected to the board, on which she has served for the past four years. She is also a member of the Haliburton County Economic Development Commission.

Tim Casey, a partner in Shamrock Drilling and Shamrock Quarry in Donald, who is also involved in the family owner Birch Point Lodge resort on Lake Kashagawigamog, was re-elected to the board on which he served for the first time last year.

Also elected for a second term was Rhonda Elstone, part owner and secretary/treasurer of G. Elstone Construction Company Ltd. She is also currently serving a second term on the board of directors of the Lake Kashag-awigamog Tourist Association.

Bruce Henry, who has served on the Chamber a number of times, was re-elected to the board, having served last year. Owner of Halimar Resort, he is a former vice president and president of Resorts Ontario, and a founding member of the Haliburton Scout Association and the Lake Kashagawigamog Tourist Association.

Also re-elected to a second term on the board was Ann Lee, a partner in Silver Eagle Cottages on Eagle Lake.

Paulette Blake, owner of Paulette's Antiques and Gifts in Haliburton and a member of the Haliburton Business Association, was elected for the first time.

Jack Brezina, owner of the Minden Times, was also elected for the first term on the board, as were Dave Chaffield, a freelance media representative, James Orr, owner/operator of Sir Sam's Inn Lodge on Eagle Lake, and Keith Stephenson, owner/operator of Haliburton Highlands Golf Club on Lake Kashagawigamog.

money left to do the Bobcaygeon Road as originally intended. Council has approval for $20,000 in supplementary funding, which is given to municipalities for capital expenditures on equipment or buildings. The township is requesting that the amount be transferred into road maintenance, instead of being spent on a backhoe as originally intended.

The move is acceptable said White, but "they (the township) had so many dollars to spend and it would certainly appear to us that they've lost control of their budget. They didn't know how much they'd spent until White said he "can't comment" on the decision by Reeve Sinc Nesbitt and council's decision to discontinue transferring funds from construction to maintenance and vice-versa, which had been done by past councils.

Nesbitt, in a telephone interview Monday night, said "the grant structure hasn't changed in 50 years, but if you build a subdivision tomorrow, the Ministry tells you and the municipality what standard that road's got to be at." The problem stems from the original five percent increase in maintenance funding in March, said Nesbitt, which council "knew" was unacceptable. "There was just not enough money there, and that's all there is to it."

Concerning the possibility of mismanagement, Nesbitt said the problem originated from past council transferring funds from one department to the other.

"I don't believe that when you come to ask me for mortgage money to buy a house you should end up buying a car. So I don't believe that when I ask for supplementaries to build a road that I should sit there and transfer it to maintenance and never get any roads built."

needed were taken from general revenues, but were never shown on the budget report submitted to the Ministry.

The letter went on to say that "several changes had evidently been made to the road construction program submitted to this Ministry last March." One of three changes, it stated, involved work being carried out on the Scotch Line East road at an originally estimated expenditure of $20,000. Expenditures by the end of August reached $43,000.

Burk explained that the township originally intended to construct five roads in 1979, but when the county roads department was resurfacing "at such a reasonable price," council decided to divert some of the money allocated for the Bobcaygeon Road project to the Scotch Line East project, since paving costs next year would be increased.

"It's just been overspent," said Burk. "Now there is no

Council has approval for $20,000 in supplementary funding, which is given to municipalities for capital expenditures on equipment or buildings. The township is requesting that the amount be transferred into road maintenance, instead of being spent on a backhoe as originally intended.

The move is acceptable said White, but "they (the township) had so many dollars to spend and it would certainly appear to us that they've lost control of their budget. They didn't know how much they'd spent until White said he "can't comment" on the decision by Reeve Sinc Nesbitt and council's decision to discontinue transferring funds from construction to maintenance and vice-versa, which had been done by past councils.

Nesbitt, in a telephone interview Monday night, said "the grant structure hasn't changed in 50 years, but if you build a subdivision tomorrow, the Ministry tells you and the municipality what standard that road's got to be at." The problem stems from the original five percent increase in maintenance funding in March, said Nesbitt, which council "knew" was unacceptable.

"There was just not enough money there, and that's all there is to it."

Concerning the possibility of mismanagement, Nesbitt said the problem originated from past council transferring funds from one department to the other.

"I don't believe that when you come to ask me for mortgage money to buy a house you should end up buying a car. So I don't believe that when I ask for supplementaries to build a road that I should sit there and transfer it to maintenance and never get any roads built."

"And we'll go right on with this route next year."

Roads in Minden subdivision should not be assumed: MTC

Certain roads in the Highland Gates subdivision in Minden should not be assumed into the Anson, Hindon and Minden township road system since they are not completed to acceptable standards, a Ministry of Transportation and Communications representative has advised council.

Though he offered no specific advice on repairing the roads, Don Glashan, an MTC roads inspector, said in a letter to Anson, Hindon and Minden council last week that there are some areas of road in the subdivision that must be reconstructed or improved before a recommendation to assume the roads can be given.

"A test hole in the grade in the area of Lots 1 and 2 on the Knob Hill road indicated an unsatisfactory road bed," the letter said. "It appears that the ground was stripped and shaped with shallow ditches and only crushed gravel applied." It added that if a hard surface was added to the gravel and clay material, the life expectancy of the surface would be shorter than for other roads.

The letter went on to say that several boulevards are constructed down the street's hill with no apparent method of drainage control, and that there is no culvert at Highland Boulevard.

"I cannot recommend the

Youths face charges

Three area youths and a juvenile have been charged with three counts of break, enter and theft following investigation of breakins that occurred in Haliburton Village, September 16-17.

Charged in connection with breakins at Haliburton Laundromat, Haliburton Hairdressers and Bruce's Barber Shop, were John Briggs, 17, of RR 1, Minden, Darren K. MacInnes, 16 of Haliburton, Edward Davis, 16 of Haliburton, and a juvenile.

municipality assume any portion of this subdivision until the above noted have been corrected," Glashan said.

Council criticized the MTC representative's observations. Councillor Lyle McKnight said he didn't "know what would satisfy Glashan," and that the roads needed only minor repair and upgrading.

Councillor Stu Brandon was concerned that Glashan did not advise council how to improve the roadbed, and merely criticized how the roads were constructed. "He should tell us what to do," he said, "not just tell us what's wrong."

COTA by-laws 'questionable'

the Chamber of Commerce appoints the two directors from this area to the board, "and that's what we intend to go by," Stinson said.

"It's an unfortunate situation," he said. "We all agree that Bill Smith (owner of Elephant Lake Lodge) is an excellent director. It's a simple matter of saying that we want representation" on the COTA board to come "from our Chamber, which represents the area."

The lawyer, Stinson said, is

"suggesting that you can't have a closed shop," on a board of directors; that appointing delegates rather than electing them is "questionable under the Human Rights Code."

The Ministry of Industry and Tourism has taken no position on the matter, and suggested that COTA consult a lawyer on the legality of the by-laws.

The report is not expected to go before the COTA board for at least a month, Stinson said.

Politics of confrontation

Anson, Hindon and Minden council may well have failed in its efforts to squeeze more money for road maintenance from the Ministry of Transportation and Communications. In a letter to council tabled at a meeting last week, MTC district engineer, D.A.O. White, said he "very much doubt(ed) whether additional subsidy funds are available for allocating to (the) municipality." While White's letter does not represent the last word on the matter, it indicates that council's tactics are not having the effect the reeve and his councillors apparently envisioned when they made a decision to overspend the maintenance portion of the budget by at least $40,000.

Long before the road workers were laid off last month, and several times since, Reeve Sinc Nesbitt has stressed that he intends to run the municipality "like a business". That, of course, is nothing new. Municipalities are corporations which gather money from citizens and from the province through grants, and which are charged with the responsibility of spending that money for the good of ratepayers. Unlike the federal government, which has the power to print money, a municipality cannot spend more than it takes in. The reeve has said that no business can operate for long in the 'red', and has used that truism as justification for laying off the road workers. But no shrewd business person would spend more money in a few months that he or she could expect to make in the course of a year. Yet that is exactly what Anson, Hindon and Minden council has done, apparently deliberately. By the reeve's own admission, council knew in March that it would be in the red by September.

In past years, the problem has been avoided by transferring funds allocated for construction and using them for maintenance. That approach is common practice among municipalities across the province. This year, however, Anson, Hindon and Minden council decided not to transfer those funds and instead, completed reconstruction projects. At the heart of the decision was a belief that when maintenance funds were exhausted, the Ministry would have little choice but to come up with supplementary funding. It was a confrontation tactic, and it backfired.

The Ministry appears decidedly reluctant to find more maintenance money for Anson, Hindon and Minden this year. The Municipal Act, as D.A.O. White pointed out in his letter, states clearly that councils are bound to repair and maintain public roads. Council had no choice but to send the road crew back to work.

The confrontation tactic may well have worked in an earlier period, when the game of politics was played by different ground rules than those which are in force today. Governments facing recessions, inflation, and voters in a mood for restraint, are not easily intimidated by municipal councils.

Council should have taken the more reasonable tack of scrutinizing expenditures carefully and stretching funds to meet the whole year's need, even if that meant continuing the long standing practice of shifting construction funds to maintenance and using general revenues to meet shortfalls. Coupled with that approach, council could have forcefully pursued with the Ministry, the contention that maintenance subsidies for Anson, Hindon and Minden are inadequate.

There is no reason to doubt the strength of council's convictions, but there are many reasons to doubt the efficacy and prudence of its tactics.

The few and the many

Four representatives of the business community in Haliburton and Minden verbalized this week, an underlying weakness in the business communities in both villages. The majority of business people in both places, it seems, are complacent.

For proof, all four cite the problems that have been experienced in both communities in trying to get business associations off the ground.

Main impetus behind efforts to form associations in both communities was the possibility of improving the streetscape. There is no doubt that the main streets of both communities could use a facelift. Organizers hoped that pulling together, business people could have the main streets designated as Business Improvement Areas, find a unified theme, and work to make the villages more attractive.

It may well be that the business communities are too small and the season too short to make the BIA concept practical. So far, however, that has not been conclusively established, except for default, and the idea deserves more consideration.

Both communities would be better off if business people worked together to merchandise goods and services and to provide councils with input on decisions affecting the business sector.

That will never happen, however, as long as the complacency of the majority stultifies the commitment of the few.

Rain cloud over the Beech River

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

This summer, at the request of one of the township council executive (Monmouth), I addressed a number of different township council members on the subject of "Acid Rain". After describing the source, effect and prognosis, I suggested a possible local remedial program that might be discussed. In an editorial and news item following the meeting, you sounded a negative position that envisaged any action being put in abeyance until the provincial government reported on the matter. You also referred to the writer as a local cottager.

In fact, Mr. Pizzev, I am a permanent resident here and although concerned about the problem, I am not uninformed. To establish credibility I must state that I am a graduate organic chemist holding the degrees of B.A. and M.A. from Queen's University, that I hold some 14 U.S. Patents on chemical processes and that products manufactured in the U.S.A. by Monsanto Chemical Corp. derive from these patents, and that I saw the first disastrous results of "Acid Rain" while working for the Federal Service in the Sudbury area in the early thirties.

Your belief that large governments solve problems is refreshing if incredible. Governments cannot solve problems only people solve problems. It is an unfortunate truism, that political power is based on avoiding problems that cost money without conferring electoral dividends. If governments are forced to take action, they do so through commissions and committees. If a government committee had been given the task of inventing the electric light, we would remain in perpetual darkness. I suggest, Mr. Pizzev, that the "Tooth Fairy" is a more practical saviour than large government.

Furthermore, we have all the resources in this area to evaluate the problem and if necessary, to initiate a small recovery program of our own. It is not necessary in this case to re-invent the wheel. Other people in other jurisdictions have not only recovered their lakes but have published the criteria to be followed and the cost per program of the method.

We have the limestone (or dolomite) in large amounts in our immediate area. We have the equipment here to deliver it to the sites and we have the need of a winter works program that would be of enormous benefit to our people.

I suggest that we assess our human resources and call on our scientific community locally, to give us their cooperation then take a few acid stressed lakes and set up a modest recovery program. Then we will be able to shame the provincial government into funding a more extensive program based on local effort only.

At the moment, the government is attempting to repeat research that other jurisdictions have already completed and published. After they verify what is already public knowledge they will set a royal commission to study the results of the research study; then they will have a legislative committee re-examine all the studies and recommend a program. By this time there won't be a problem since most of our lakes will be either dead or nearly so. Then the government can admit that perhaps they were a bit tardy.

On the other hand, if we can copy a page from those who lived here when governments were silent and who were forced to solve all their problems themselves as a cooperative unit, then you will see that people truly solve problems not governments.

Your paper, Mr. Pizzev, as you so eloquently stated in a talk given some weeks ago, is solely interested in the long-term well-being of the total community. You also suggested that undue publicity given to problems of this type might scare people away. I suggest that these two objectives are totally at variance with each other. If in the long-term, we fail to solve the problem of our lakes, short-term benefits from remaining silent will be chimerical. The program that the U.S.A. and Canada have proposed wherein the use of coal-fired plants will be tripled in the next twenty years will never be reversed by the knowledge that it will doom our lakes and our forests, in this area at least. If we intend to live here and have our children live here then to hide from the problem is a cowardly cop-out. We must solve our problems alone unless with the total help of your medium, we can force the senior governments through public censure, to back our actions.

Sincerely,
H. Michael Collins, B.A., M.A., A.C.I.C., Gooderham, Ontario

To the Editor:

Before you make sweeping statements such as you did in your editorial about our county council and the Planning Strategy, you should make sure that your sources of information are correct. You stated that the council approved the new form of the Strategy without ever seeing the changes in wording. This is not true. Mrs. Lahay sent copies of both the original and the new wording of every changes to every member of county council. I saw the file of everything which was sent out. It could not be more comprehensive.

Secondly, you called the county council a weak, ineffective body. As a relative newcomer to the area, you have no idea how much work these people do for our area. The hours spent on the various committees and other tasks do not make themselves apparent to someone who sits in on the monthly meetings from time to time.

If you want your editorial opinion to be respected, be darn sure you know what you are talking about before you put it in print.

Yours Sincerely,
Bill Valentine,
R. R. 1, Norland

Feir Play

by Creighton Feir

Following the Thanksgiving weekend we found it a little sad when we had to say goodbye to many of our good friends who come up in the early spring, stay until Thanksgiving and then head back to Toronto or to some other centre in Ontario for the winter months. I have had the pleasure of getting to know most of them personally and I am always fascinated by the interest they show in local affairs and the wonderful way that they get involved in the community. They are wonderful people and I can hardly wait until they move back and become year round residents. It's the new blood in our communities with people with new, fresh ideas that is going to make the county go ahead.

One day last week I had the pleasure of having a chat with an old friend of mine, Mark Vasey of Minden. Since Mark retired from the insurance business it seemed that we didn't see him around as much as we did before. I have known Mark and his boys for a great many years and when one thinks of the Vasey's they immediately think of hockey. Mark's three boys, Glen, Gary and Ted played a lot of their hockey in Minden and Mark of course was a big backer of hockey there for a great many years. When Mark arrived in my office he told me that he was preparing for his annual winter jaunt down south where he lives in a house he built there a few years ago. He usually leaves about October and arrives back in Minden in April. During our short talk Mark was recalling all the ups and downs he had while being a part of the Minden Monarchs who at that time played in the Intermediate B and C, O.H.A. league. It was interesting to hear him tell of the many problems they had operating the team and of the financial losses they suffered while icing a hockey club each year. Those were the days if you can remember when the Monarchs packed the Minden arena with many an evening of thrilling hockey action.

Everyone seems to talk about the weather and we like to keep away from the subject as much as possible but when you have a snowstorm like we had last week it's very hard to overlook it. Some people we have been talking with told us that if that snowstorm is any indication of the winter that lies ahead, then we are in for a long one. In other words, spring could be a little late next year. I overheard a gentleman say that we had over seven inches of snow and it looks as if this could be a record for this time of year. I can recall getting a few flurries about this time of the year in the past, but not seven inches. The weatherman seems to be just full of these little surprises.

Just a reminder here that Dr. Carman Price, the founder of Christian Life Health Center in Pickering, will be the guest speaker when the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship (Haliburton Hyland Chapter) hold their monthly dinner meeting this coming Friday, October 19, at 7:00 p.m. at the Canadian Legion Hall at Haliburton. Come and hear the exciting testimony of a doctor who prays for patients in his office before giving them medical attention.

The National Hockey League got underway last week when they kicked off the 1979-80 season. The ice has been left in at the arena in Haliburton and the local boys have been practising for some time now. The artificial ice will be going in at the arenas in Minden and Wilberforce very soon and the hockey season in Haliburton County will be underway. At this time we urge all Haliburton County residents to get out and support the teams in their community. It is to be hoped that during the 1979-80 hockey season more parents and fans will get out to show their moral support for the boys who play minor hockey and will be the future citizens of tomorrow. The Haliburton Northern-Ways Junior Huskies have been working out at the local arena for the past few weeks and are getting their team lined up to start their Junior "D" O.H.A. schedule. The Huskies are also going to need your support if they are to make the play-offs and go on to bigger and better things. The Huskies who will be playing in a four team league will have the ability and talent to play real good hockey and win some games, but it certainly is a lot easier when the players feel the local fans are behind them.

After being closed for the past year and a half, the Beaconbrook Motor Hotel at Haliburton reopened its doors last week under new management. In speaking with the new owner, George Schmid, he told us that he plans on expanding the dining room business and will be offering luncheon specials and late evening dining. Mr. Schmid also announced that the dining room will be opening soon.

There will be a general meeting of the Haliburton and District Association for the Mentally Retarded on Thursday, October 18, 1979 at 8:00 p.m. at Lakeview Centre, Haliburton, for the purpose of proposing some by-law changes. All members and friends of the association are invited.

From what we can learn the car and truck dealers in the area are doing a big business selling new cars and trucks. All of the dealers report good sales and one would have to wonder if there is anything wrong with the economy when you learn of these results.

You can take it with you and it's a good idea. What? A supply of minor bits and pieces that frequently break and stop you on the road. If you've got a fan belt, radiator hoses, points, plugs and fuses with you, any service station can install them and get you going. The Ontario Safety League reminds you that you won't always be able to get a special hose or belt readily on a weekend.

In closing this week, let's take a look at the weather. Up to this point in the month of October, it has been anything but nice. We have had high winds, cold weather, rain, snow, you name it and we have had it. The month of October unlike September which was an ideal month weather-wise has been a time when one wonders if the sun is ever going to shine.

Report from Parliament

by Bill Scott M.P.

This month, October 1979, has been designated as the first International Energy Conservation Month (IECM) by the 20 member countries who make up the International Energy Agency (IAE). The purpose of having one month designated as an energy conservation month is to reinforce worldwide efforts to stimulate and promote energy conservation. Along with the federal and provincial governments, IECM participants include citizen groups, members of the business community and individual Canadians.

Canada kicked off Energy Conservation Month with an Industrial Energy Conference in Toronto from October 1-3 on the theme "Industrial Energy Conservation - Achievements and Potential." The conference provided an international forum for government and industry officials to exchange views and information on programs and opportunities for conservation in industry.

Canada will undertake other energy conservation promotions during October as well. A youth art project designated by the federal department of Energy, Mines and Resources and the non-profit organization "All About Us/Nous Autres" on the theme of the importance of energy conservation to the future will encourage student participation in IECM through essays, art work and photography. The art work of all the children of the participating countries of the IAE in International Energy Conservation Month will be exhibited in London, England, next summer.

A National Film Board of Canada film "It's An Emergency" with Dr. David Suzuki will examine energy management in industry. There will be a renewed emphasis on some of the federal government's existing programs to increase public awareness of energy, such as "ENERSAVE", which assesses home insulation need, and there will be an expansion of the government's internal "SAVE 10" program.

Conservation for the individual Canadian means walking sometime instead of riding. And when we do drive, it means having a properly tuned engine, correctly inflated tires, and avoiding jackrabbit starts, high speeds and unnecessary idling. All will save gasoline. It's estimated that if Canadian motorists did all these things, as well as combining them with a switch away from bigger cars faster than we have been doing, Canada could save up to 30 percent of the petroleum we now use annually. Big savings are possible in housing as well through conservation. The 7.5 million homes in Canada consume almost one-fifth of all energy used. If we set the thermostat at 68 degrees Fahrenheit, during the day and turned it down five or six degrees at night, lowered our hot water settings from 150 to 110, weatherstripped around windows and doors, tuned our furnaces, caulked all cracks and increased insulation (using the federal government's CHIP to provide grants for houses built before 1961), our $5 billion a year home energy bill could be halved.

Conservation can work in business and industry too. Most commercial buildings are overheated and overlighted. In the Energy, Mines and Resources complex in Ottawa half the lighting was taken out, heat was lowered at night and on weekends, steam pipes were insulated, heating systems upgraded, and switches changed so that a whole floor didn't have to be lighted for one office. The cost was $9,700, the savings $38,000, a 38 percent savings for the year. Similar steps in other government buildings resulted in energy savings of $30 million during 1978.

In industry conservation can be effected by using heat pumps, equipment that recirculates waste heat, automated controls, switches that shut off heaters when loading doors are open, timers that shut down boilers during the night and restart them in the morning. A steelmaker insulated a line carrying pre-heated combustion air. It cost $330,000 but it saves $900,000 a year in fuel costs.

Conservation can work. It must work if Canada is to conserve her vital oil and gas resources so that Canadians can continue to enjoy their present standard of living and the nation can continue to meet its goals and commitments. A future without energy is a poor future.

Readers who would like more information about International Energy Conservation Month and how they can participate should write: IECM Secretariat, Conservation and Renewable Energy Branch, Energy, Mines and Resources Canada, 500 Booth Street, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0E4.

Bill Smiley

Some people, much too refined to indulge in pornographic books or blue movies, get their voyeuristic kicks from reading the "Personal" columns of the newspapers.

Not me. I ain't refined. By the time I've skimmed the front page, been bored by the pompous editorials, I'm through with the paper. It is strictly for wrapping garbage in.

Never do I read the classified ads, selling everything from houses and cars to bodies. I haven't time. And besides, they're all the same. Whether it's a car, a house, or a body, it's the greatest buy of the century. Many of them carry the same message: "Must be seen."

Well, I strayed. Yes, I wandered. The other day, looking through the ads for teachers in the hope that I could find my daughter's address in Moosonee (she hasn't written us in over three weeks and I have a piercing picture of her and the grand-boys stumbling around the tundra looking for the place), I staggered, by some mischance, onto the "Personal" column.

No wonder those warpies read it, the people who leave the room, nose in air, when someone mentions sex, or tells a funny, slightly off-color joke. It's a kaleidoscope of sex, sin, silliness and sickness to warm the heart of any pecker through others' windows.

I read with at first amusement, then amazement, and then a bit of shock, though I am fairly unshockable.

This appeared in "Canada's National Newspaper", which maintains a lofty moral tone on most of its other pages.

It was like looking under the rug in a highly moral dowager's house, while she is out getting tea, and finding a lot of dirt under it.

First under suspicion are the items under "Massage". Some of them are innocuous enough, but what about this one: "No appointment needed. 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. 6 days a week." With a woman's name and phone number.

Maybe she's just a hard worker, who doesn't get up too early, and doesn't like days off, but I doubt it.

Then you come to the section headed: "Readers, Palmistry, Horoscopes." Again, some of them are legit, as legit as a fortune-teller can be. But there are some intriguing ones: "Mrs. Selma will help you in all problems of life. No problem so small that she cannot solve (How about big ones?). One visit will convince you." Hunky-panky? Sure sounds like it.

But that is kid stuff, only mildly titillating, compared with the sick, arrogant, lonely, blunt, no-holds barred medicine that comes under the heading: Companions Wanted. This is where the real meat of the "Personal Column" is, and I imagine an inveterate reader skips the masseuses and the fortune tellers quickly, and gets down to peering into private lives.

When I was in the weekly newspaper business, there was the occasional pathetic guy who would come in to the office and place an ad: "Successful young farmer, good farm, stock, house, seeks partner interested in matrimony. Write Box 220B."

It was pathetic because we knew the guy. He was 53, ugly. His farm was sixty acres, most second-second-growth bush and pasture. His "stock" consisted of two pigs, four chickens, and three mangy cows. His "house" was a shack without plumbing, heated by a pot-bellied stove. He never received an answer, but would come in once a week for two months, asking for the mail from Box 220B.

But these city slickers are a lot more suitable and tough. I'll give you a few examples that curdled me a bit. The egos are fantastic.

"Professional man, married, mid-thirties, seeks married woman for afternoon or evening meetings." How would you like to be his wife?

"Gentleman, 48, business owner, lives in new apt, seeks charming, attractive lady to share his life with." No mention of marriage.

"Middle-aged business man seeks younger male companion." Well,

"Sophisticated gentleman, creative type, seeks the pleasure of sensuous woman 30-45. If an exciting affair with an appreciative male is your style, send snapshot and phone no. to..." He could be 80.

But it's not all men. "Lady, 55, R.C., wishes to meet gent up to 60." If you're sixty-one you're out, but you could be twenty-one.

"One wild and crazy guy wishes to meet one wild and crazy gal who loves dancing and camping and would like to share a serious relationship." On a dance floor? In a tent?

"I am a lovely, loving female, 33, divorced and a writer, who is also tolerant, perceptive, idealistic, off-beat, romantic, cerebral and a Cancer, looking for an honest, stable relationship. I am looking for a man... (and a list of adjectives like hers). Someone with a calm exterior, but brimming with hidden fires and worlds to explore. Under 50 and over five feet seven inches." That's what gets me. After the great build-up, the blunt facts. If you were fifty-one and five-six, you'd miss out on this fantastic woman.

"Intriguing, blonde young lady seeks wealthy man for daytime affair." That's the shortest and most honest of the bunch. She probably works nights.

I'm afraid the only one that tempted me was: "Russian lady, Beautiful. (That's nice, nothing against beautiful Russian ladies.) Seeks gentleman over 40. (O.K. I qualify.) Lives in Sao Paulo, Brazil. (Great climate there.) For marriage purposes." Always the stone-dead clincher at the end. I'd have to ask my wife.

From the Chamber

by Bob Stinson

We Missed Many of You

The Chamber's annual meeting was held last week and a good time was had by all - but many of our members weren't there. We wonder why, because this is your Chamber, and out of 325 members only 39 votes determined your board of directors for the coming year. We were very pleased that more than enough individuals indicated their very real interest in the Chamber by running for office - but certainly disappointed in the number that came to vote for them.

Four years ago we changed the meetings from spring to fall because we found our members had more time then. We have made the annual meeting a very social evening and kept the business to a minimum, which was felt to be the desire of most. We have insisted on holding the evening on a week night to assure that those whose business is greatest on weekends could attend. This year we went to the Stanhope Firefighter's Hall because it would accommodate more people and we added live entertainment.

The evening was successful, an excellent board of directors was elected, the 85 people that were there said they enjoyed it - it's just that we wonder what else we should be doing to encourage more to attend. If you have some thoughts on it please let us know.

Our hearty congratulations go out to Carole Finn who was awarded the Highlander of the Year award for her many efforts over the years with the Guild of Fine Arts, and in particular for the driving force she provided in creating the Rails' End Gallery.

Tragic End to Meeting

Miss Barbara Valli attended our annual meeting representing C.K.L.Y. radio in Lindsay. Following the meeting she left for Lindsay in the radio station's van and somehow lost control just north of the Twelve Mile Lake bridge. She was listed in satisfactory condition at Ross Memorial Hospital, and was then moved to Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto for further tests. It was expected she would be released in a few days after which she would be convalescing at home. We wish her a full and speedy recovery.

A Winter Book

The Chamber is presently gathering advertising for a winter promotional book which will feature cross country ski trails, snowmobile trails, and detailed information about all our winter activities and events. We are anxious to hear from any of you that have information or items of interest that should be included. Of course if you operate a business that relates to winter we should hear from you also.

It should be stressed that this publication is not intended to compete with the snowmobile map book produced by the snowmobile association. We will not be providing the detailed maps that they do, and will be promoting the full spectrum of winter activities. Ours is a "Lure" piece, and theirs is an information piece for those who have

by Joe Banks

Sid Cooper, president of the Haliburton Minor Hockey Association, this week wrote a brief outline of the philosophy of this year's executive, which appears elsewhere on this page.

Sid has brought out some points which are worth commenting on, and it might be wise for every concerned hockey parent to take note of what he and the executive have adopted as a working base.

He raises the point of "perspective", how parents come first, school second and hockey third in priority. Certainly this is a wise and logical ideal, for it's the most psychologically healthy for the child. If he likes hockey and is good at it, his parents can encourage him to live to his fullest potential, not through forceful abuse or criticism but by giving the child positive reinforcement for the way he plays. School strengthens the child's knowledge of himself and others, and he can learn to decide what hockey means to him.

"We believe that personal relationships and one's responsibilities are most important, but that recreational activities are also important for well-rounded development," Sid says. Parents who believe their little Johnny is going to be an N.H.L. star, even though they recognize he's a mediocre player, are fooling themselves. If they force their own expectations on him, he feels threatened with having to live up to them, and that's an ominous task for anybody to accomplish. Let him develop on his own, with encouragement from a parent.

The story goes on and outlines other important philosophies of the executive. Unfortunately, I don't have room to cover them all in this space, but I mentioned the above points because I feel they are the most important in a young player's development. The relationship between the parent and the child is as important to the child's skill development as ice side advice from his coach, and combined, he's got just as good a chance as being a great hockey player and athlete as anybody else.

Sid and the executive should be praised for their well thought-out philosophy, and for showing all of it to us in black and white...

...Did I write that? The International Union of Wayward Hockey Psychologists will probably mount my column on their dartboard for unqualified comments like that. And speaking of psychologists, the Liquor License Board of Ontario might consider hiring one for their policy makers (yes, the government). The men's baseball league wanted to advertise their upcoming dance this week, but couldn't because of a law that says this: if you're having a social event, reception, etc. that is not public, you cannot place an advertisement in the paper even if you make no mention of a special occasion permit. In other words, if you've got a licence, and you're throwing a public blast, it's okay to advertise, but if you're having a dance in a hall, like the Haliburton Men's Recreational Softball League is doing next week, forget it pal. Here's a plug that the L.L.B.O. won't catch: The dance starts at 9 p.m. on October 26 at the Legion, it'll cost five bucks per couple, trophies will be presented for the M.V.P. and the champions, and there will be a plentiful supply of refreshments...

...Claude Parish, referee in chief for the Haliburton Minor hockey area, is open to offers from coaches to inform their players of the new Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rule changes. This year, the rules are submitted and passed earlier in an effort to get the rule book printed sooner and delivered to the branches for distribution in late August. Just call Claude for further details...

No, these boys haven't won a tournament cup or an important championship game; they just finished a typical strenuous work-out at the Dysart arena last Monday night, in preparation for the upcoming season. The boys belong to the OMHA Bantam team, and if their enthusiasm stays as high as it is now, they should be top contenders this winter.

President outlines work base

by Sid Cooper, President, Haliburton Minor Hockey Association

The Haliburton Minor Hockey Association exists for the purpose of providing the children of the area with an opportunity to play organized hockey. We cannot function without coaches and referees, and we need an organization to coordinate the activities and facilities, but we are all involved for the benefit of the kids.

At the same time, we try to promote a philosophy with our hockey players which keeps hockey in perspective: their parents come first, school is second, and hockey is third in priority. We believe that personal relationships and one's responsibilities are most important, but that recreational activities are also important for well-rounded development.

It is important that parents are involved with hockey in whatever capacity they can manage, whether it be coaching, managing, refereeing, or just cheering them on. However, their involvement should never reach the point of forcing their own expectations on the children.

In Haliburton, we are trying to develop a hockey system that will carry a youngster through from Atom to Midget with some measure of consistency. Players will use the same format for the development of skills all the way through. This year, more emphasis will be placed on skills such as skating, drills, turning both ways, puck handling, and shooting.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association system is for players with a higher level of skill development who can cope with a more demanding level of competition. The Tri-County system is designed for players with a lower skill level. The competition is still there, but emphasis is placed on skill development. It is not unusual for youngsters to shift back and forth from O.M.H.A. to Tri-County and vice versa at various stages of their hockey careers, due to variations in their skill development.

We need and solicit the help of all able parents. There are many jobs to be done, both in the Tri-County system and in the O.M.H.A. system.

The most important debate surrounding minor hockey at this time is on the subject of violence. At a recent O.M.H.A. meeting in Toronto...

Minor hockey in full swing

by Doug Mitchell

Minor hockey in Haliburton is now in full swing with organizational and administrative duties fairly well completed.

With over 100 players registered, Haliburton has a full complement of teams this year. In the OMHA league, teams are entered in Midget, Bantam, Pee Wee and Atom divisions. In the Tri-county league, teams are entered in the same divisions as OMHA, with the possibility of entering two Novice teams.

During this week, the first testing of skill development will take place for all players. Similar tests will take place two more times during the year and each athlete's progress will be recorded.

The Haliburton Minor Hockey Association would like to say a special thanks to Ray Goulet for his very professional organization of our hockey school. By sharing his knowledge and talents with the young hockey players of Haliburton, he helps each person to improve their skills.

Next week in the paper, hockey schedules will be published for each team and division.

sticking, slashing and boarding infractions. At the same time, the motion in favour of retaining body checking at all levels of O.M.H.A. play was carried. ...The Haliburton Secondary School Redmen have had a week off, and should be able to take out I.E. Weldon from Lindsay with few problems. Their last game was played yesterday, but because it was being played at press time, I couldn't get details of the game in time. Larry didn't want anything written in the paper about his past coaching or playing experience, so we don't know a thing about him yet, except that he's from Haliburton County and is interested in making the Huskies a winning team. We'll see if we can get more details next week, but Larry wanted us to mention that the team is still far away from a full compliment of players, and any boys of age interested in trying out are welcome to come out any night during Huskie practices. So far, the Huskies have only six players signed...

Continuing to get ready for winter, we had to reduce the dimensions of the nice patio swing. It is held together by bolts and nuts, some of which had to be moved, but the whole assembly will nicely fit into the shed with everything else. We were surprised at the amount of corrosion in the nut bolt thread so advantage was taken of their removal to grease them thoroughly. Next year all the other bolts will be taken out and likewise greased. The plants in the patio boxes, having gone into dormancy, are all healed in and will need no more attention until next year.

We are told that two million Canadians go south every fall, so that with the serious energy shortage down there we doubt if they will find themselves in a very enviable position. That will represent a very heavy Canadian currency drain that the government does not need, another price for the opulence Canadians enjoy in the pursuit of happiness.

No one has informed us as to how much power generated by Ontario Hydro simply must drizzle away. In this day of energy shortage, particularly in Ontario, and with all the advanced switching devices, this power could be channelled into storage, say in the form of hydrogen and oxygen by hydro electrolysis. We are referring to the drizzle, that power between what is used and the generated peak.

Miss Karen Henderson is now up to 11,243 cigarette boxes and must be given credit for her persistence, volunteering as well for our Tuesday's bingo, the other helpers being Mrs. Betty Wise, Mrs. Betty Yateman and Mrs. Dorothy Iles, a full house.

Mrs. June Devolin and Mrs. Jane Johnston were the interpreters for our Wednesday morning Bible study in particular Isaiah 55, the subject for study and discussion "God gives the food and drink we need; seek Him first." The residents enjoy these studies very much.

Andrew Curry of Haliburton is the latest admission to the Happy Gang, having come in Tuesday evening. Every resident appears to us to benefit greatly after, say, a few weeks.

It is amazing how much protest is still aimed at nuclear power, when everyone should know it is either that or freeze in the dark. If the price of oil continues to increase, soon it will become prohibitive, leaving us to walk as the only means of travel. If the G.M. employees continue to get more pay, very few will afford to buy a car, probably financed at 20 percent interest, and so the dominoes will continue to show vast obstacles to a smooth economy and contented living. Even so, we can help by giving support and encouragement to those entrusted to solve our energy problems though it be nuclear, solar, wind, tidal or geothermal. Solar power seems to us the most auspicious, simply a matter of insulating, then heating a mass of water, or rock, (Haliburton has plenty) or soil, to specifically contain as much heat as would be produced in our homes by the electric heaters, or burning oil, coal or wood. Once established there would be no further cost of upkeep as long as we lived there, and no fire danger. A trial home of, say, solar heating a mass of water and another a mass of rock, would once and for all prove or disprove the feasibility.

Wednesday as we were about to pass Victoria St. Public School, some Haliburton firemen arrived, went in and tripped the fire alarm. Before we went a hundred meters further, the school was empty of children, all of whom were in the school yard well away from the building. That was the neatest and cutest fire drill we have seen and should rate a blue ribbon, much of the credit going to the staff and the Haliburton County school board.

The Friday morning devotional period was conducted by Mr. James Cooper of the Gideon's International in Canada. His wife Doris ushered among us and Mrs. Kim Brown played the piano. The theme taken from John 20, "I am the way, the truth and the life, no one can get to the father except by means of me." That is the kernel of Christianity. Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Brown served the tea and coffee and cookies for the enjoyable after-service snack.

We had three movies lined up for the afternoon but an Extendicare fire drill omitted the third. 1. Scenes of Morocco, being scenes of desert life reminding us of a cliché we often hear, "In the desert, no man meets a friend". 2. Scarlet and Gold; a brief on the beginning of the

Over the Thanksgiving holiday, there were many visitors to Hyland Crest. The weather was fairly good over the weekend, and it was quite a shock to wake up Tuesday morning to find the ground covered with snow.

Rev. David Barker of Minden Anglican Church held a Communion service in the chapel on Tuesday morning. Agnes Taylor played the organ while we sang some inspiring hymns.

Later in the afternoon, it was movie time in the auditorium. There was a good number turned out to watch two very scenic and interesting films. The first, called Ocean Heritage, was filmed in Newfoundland. The narrator took us on a tour along the rugged coastline. It was interesting to note that the homes are situated all in a clump with access to the shoreline. The reason for this is that fishing is the main industry, and everyone there is a fisherman. The churches are the focal point of the whole community. We saw also the inside of a lighthouse and learned how they operate. The raging storms and rocky coastline make lighthouses an absolute necessity.

The Living River showed us the life at the bottom of our rivers. We watched the reproduction and migration of many species of fish and eel.

Wednesday morning, a good number of people went to the auditorium for the fun and fitness program. We sang our songs while exercising our bodies. After a fun game of darts we kicked the ball in time to some old time banjo music. Several wheelchair residents participated in the program and it is good to see these people enjoying the activity.

In the afternoon, the ladies went to the craft room to work on many different items. We are working particularly hard these days preparing for the Christmas bazaar. We would like to thank the several faithful volunteers who turn out to help each week.

The ladies of the Kinmount Legion made our Thursday afternoon tea party a great success. They brought a delicious assortment of sandwiches and cake. We would like to thank these generous ladies for making our afternoon an enjoyable one.

Thursday evening was bingo night again with the Kinsmen. Everyone looks forward to playing, hoping to win tokens to spend at the tuck shop. Our thanks to the Kinsmen for making it possible.

Friday morning was fun and fitness time when, as usual, we had a real fun time. Later on after lunch, Grace Colburne was here to lead the sing song. We sang some familiar gospel songs and some old favourites. Mr. Fred Ballard accompanied us on the organ.

Birthdays celebrated this week were Mr. Tom Harrison, October 6 and Ethel MacDonald, October 10. Both these special people were presented with a lovely birthday cake while everyone joined to sing Happy Birthday.

In this, the second of our series on how the layman can obtain quality in purchasing crafts in our county, we will cover the fine points as well as the do's and don'ts, of woodworking and furniture construction.

The primary responsibility of the wood craftsman, should be a design for function and serviceability - did the craftsman enhance its construction by good and careful work - did he have enough respect for his design and the piece, to execute it properly?

1. Excellence of execution: is the piece well brought off, are the methods of construction appropriate and finely wrought, or poorly chosen and clumsily executed.

2. Pleasing appearance: whether candlesticks or china cabinet, the crafted item should stand comfortably. An awkward or unbalanced stance is an upsetting influence on its surroundings.

3. Grain direction and timber species: grain direction should run upward in spikes - i.e.: because that is the direction of growth making a harmonious whole. i.e.: the grain should flow with the lines of the piece, in a table - up the left leg, across top and down the right leg.

4. In purchasing hand-made furniture it is the responsibility of both the craftsman and the customer to work harmoniously together so that the finished piece reflects both the craftsman's design as well as the personality of owner and its ultimate surroundings.

5. Drawers: should be dovetailed and of solid wood construction. i.e. - a well constructed drawer should close without binding simply by pushing on any one of its four corners.

6. Stress factor: construction of furniture should be such, that expansion or contraction due to changes in atmospheric conditions will not put stress on the piece or cause it to crack. i.e. There are a number of sliding joints that will accomplish this and any craftsman will point this out.

7. Choosing a craftsman: ask to see some of his work or perhaps photographs of pieces, also ask to see a sample of the finish he will use. In furniture the final finish should be appropriate to use. i.e.: Table for everyday use should have a hard, tough, washable finish like urethane, decorative piece, a higher form of finish, high polish, and always take the craftsman's advice on how to maintain finish.

For those contemplating buying hand-built furniture or those who have hesitated in doing so, I hope the above will be of some help.

Norland Notebook

by Barbara Maunder

That was quite a surprise to awaken to three to four inches of wet snow on Tuesday morning, October 9. It is very early in the year to have snow fall and stay on the ground. In fact, the weather station at Sir Sandford Fleming College, Frost Campus, reported that it was the earliest snowfall in the five-year history of the station. October 20, 1976 was the first measurable snowfall previous to this October 9 date.

Mrs. Bertha Traviss of R. 1 Kirkfield, Head Lake was the lucky lady whose grocery cash register tape was pulled from the entry box on Saturday, October 6 in the Norland Red and White store. Her tape totalled $39.38 and she will receive that equivalent in free groceries. She will agree, I'm sure, that it does pay to shop at our local grocery store. For the next five Saturdays, one lucky cash tape that has been deposited during the current week of business will be drawn and the winner will receive free groceries equal to the value of the winning tape.

The first Rotary Club Travelogue of the fall season was well attended on Thursday evening, October 11 in the Academy Theatre, Lindsay. Commentator and photographer, Francis Reidelberger took us on a picturesque and informative trip by canal boat where we viewed a part of England that has only been seen by a few hundred people. There are more than 2000 miles of canals throughout England and the system is aptly called "England's Gentle Highway". The trip started at London on the Thames River aboard the passenger canal boat "Lady Rose of Regents", travelled past Kew Gardens with a stop-over to view the lovely flower beds, foliage, shrubs and walks and the London Zoo. Scenic Runnymede Island, part of which was donated to the United States in memory of John Kennedy by the English people was viewed at Grant Union Canal, the Reidelbergers rented a private 48-foot canal boat and proceeded on their own to Stoke Bruene, Braunston, Stratford, Coventry, Birmingham and Cheshire. They stopped enroute at points of interest such as the factory where the lock gates are cut and constructed from huge pieces of English oak, at farmers' yard and small grocery stores to purchase food and supplies, at Stoke-on-Trent to visit and photograph the famous factory where Wedgwood china has been designed and made since 1769. The English canal waterways are only 30 feet at the widest part except at turnaround points with many spots only wide enough for one boat to pass. Once past the Thames River, the locks are all operated manually by the boater with little boating done after sunset. The canal system is owned and operated by British Waterways who dredge and clean the canals out to facilitate their use. The trip was scenic, tranquil and showed one, other landscape and sites of pretty English countryside. The next travelogue is on Thursday, November 22 when Lee Cavanagh will show Portraits of Brazil.

Come out and clown around at the Hallowe'en Dance sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of Firemen on Saturday, October 27 from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. in Norland Community Hall. There will be prizes for the best costumes and everyone will enjoy dancing to the music of Gary Peters and his group. The bar will be licensed under L.L.B.O. with refreshments as part of your admission, tickets at $8 a couple. Bring a friend to this fun evening!

Some have been asking if the waste disposal site is now open only the regular winter hours - Thursday and Sunday. On checking with some of the council members, I learned that the gate is still unlocked day and night for garbage disposal, until further notice.

Norland Public School will have a home and school meeting and meet the teachers night on Tuesday, October 16. There will be two representatives from the Haliburton-Kawartha Pine Ridge Health Unit to speak to the parents and answer questions. Kindergarten, grades 1 and 2 pupils will attend the special performance of "Beauty and the Beast" at the Academy Theatre, Lindsay on that same day. The school has donated four large frosted light globes that are similar to the ones that are in use in the community hall. You may recall that two of the lights in the hall are without globes and until now the hall board has been unsuccessful in locating the globes for these lights. The committee is grateful and accepts with thanks this unexpected and kind offer from the school board.

John Grozelle, who suffered severe injuries in a car-train collision four weeks ago, is making slow but steady improvement in Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto. He still has many weeks of hospitalization but he is no longer in the intensive care section. He would enjoy hearing from his friends so take time to drop him a card or note.

Norland bowling team standings as of October 10: teams of Mike McAllister, Rotha Bryant, and Wanda Landry are all tied with 25

by Blanche Windsor

On October 6, 1979, Janet Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Campbell of Willowdale and Stuart Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Brown of Carnarvon, were married in St. Peter's Church, Maple Lake, Rev. David Barker officiated. The reception was at the Campbell cottage, Hall's Lake. Stuart's family have lived in Carnarvon since the turn of the century. Stuart's great grandfather, Mr. Ed Brown, moved here with his wife, the former Clarissa Finkle of Hay Bay. Their farm was north of Carnarvon on the east side of Echo Bay. They were well-known, Mr. Brown having been superintendent of the Sunday school and clerk of the session. To them were born Allan, Nellie and Norman. Norman married Muriel Switzer of St. George and they resided here for many years. Muriel taught school and she was the only teacher some of the pupil's had from starting to school until they were ready for high school. Allan married Annie Chambers and their youngest son was Douglas. He and his wife Claire have purchased the Brown residence, adding to it and improving the grounds by having some trees removed.

What a surprise, to waken the day after Thanksgiving to a Christmas scene. It was beautiful with the pine trees laden with snow and branches breaking with the weight.

Mr. and Mrs. James Swartz of Oshawa spent Sunday with the Windsors.

Mrs. Lawrence Harrison had her daughter Ruth with her husband to visit her last week. Vera will again spend the winter with the Jas. Cont'd. page 10

Chatting with Irene

by Irene Moore

I'm not trying to wish my life away but the month of October has seemed endless so far. Here it is just the middle of the month and I keep thinking that Halloween is just around the corner. It is, but it is two weeks around the corner. Oh well, some day I'll get straight. I think that watching baseball, football and hockey all in the same week is what is muddling me up. There should be a set amount of time for each sport so that they don't overlap. The night that the ball game was called in the third or fourth inning until the rain stopped, I decided to have a snooze until it started again and when I woke up, I had only missed one inning so I saw the game end.

As you have noticed by now, I'm a baseball fan and was sorry the Expos lost steam, but there is always another year, so then I went with the Pirates but better switch to Orioles, then maybe the Pirates will have the series. They are both good teams and of the calibre that never gives up. Football, I am not interested in, so I read or do other work. Now hockey is another matter. Saturday night I watched Leafs' first period then Montreal's second period then back to Leafs for third period.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thorpe of Brampton spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hewitt.

Miss Joan Kernohan had a wonderful time on her weekend trip to Nashville recently. Winners at the mini card party last Thursday afternoon were: euche, lone hand - Frieda Harrison; Lillian Davidson, Bill Elcome, Cribbage - Dora Dawson, Annie Daw-

We welcome to the community, Bob and Isobel Hill, who purchased the home formerly owned by the late Ed and Rola Lee, east of Norland on Highway 503. The Hills have been coming to Norland for several years during the summer months where they camped at Shadow-Lee Trailer Park.

Wilberforce News

by Winnie Schofield

A fiftieth wedding anniversary is a great occasion. One that calls for celebration. Such an event took place in Wilberforce on the Thanksgiving weekend when friends and relatives gathered at the home of Neil and Norah Billings who look back on 50 years of marriage. Guests from far points included those from Peterborough, Lindsay, Sudbury and Petawawa. A special cake had been prepared to mark the event and was served with the luncheon. Norah and Neil received gold watches as gifts from the family.

To live the evening a mock wedding was performed with the happy couple being rewed. Daughter Flo was the bridesmaid while son Ross took the part of best man. The minister was ably represented by Fred Taylor. 1979 also marked the 25th wedding anniversary of Fred and Florence Taylor and that of Moss Billings and his wife.

Last year Rodney Bowen tore down the old building that was on the left hand side of the library. He now has a nice stretch of land that fronts his new home and that will serve as a driveway and lawn. The demolished building stood on land at one time owned by Ezra Ames.

Gordon Newman purchased it in the thirties and his brother-in-law, Keith Cameron, built a store with living quarters at the back. This was to be a butcher shop. After a change of ownership it became a restaurant operated by a Mrs. Stather and her daughter Mrs. Wright. A later change saw the restaurant owned and operated by the Breaux girls who retained possession until the property was taken over by Harold and Donna Bowen. When the Dysart Municipal Telephone moved into the area, the switchboard was located in this building and operated as such until the Bell Telephone took over and the switchboard was no longer needed. Mr.

and Mrs. Harold Bowen lived here with their sons until the marriage of their son Rodney at which time they moved to Eagle Lake. Rodney built a fine new home at the rear of the old building. The many business operations of the vanished structure should be recorded in the village history.

Attention all children. There will be a puppet show at the library on October 20 at 4 p.m. Our good friends the Deck Hands, are back again with a presentation which includes "Rumpelstiltskin".

The UCW met at Marie Footitts Thursday afternoon, October 12. As Ruth Hopwood, the president, was absent, the meeting was conducted by Pat Jordans. She began the devotions with a hymn and a poem entitled "The Wonder of God's Love". Her message was on prayer followed by another hymn and prayer. Several items of business were taken. Marion Barclay reported on the success of the flea market October 6.

A baptismal font is being placed in the church by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Sanderson in memory of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sanderson and Mr. and Mrs. Perry, with a suitable plaque.

A motion was passed to send flowers to Mrs. Charlie Bowen who is a patient in the Peterborough Civic Hospital. Another motion was made to send a thank you card to Marion Barclay's sister-in-law for compiling a hymn sheet to be used at U.C.W. meetings. It was decided to have the Christmas party on December 20. After the benediction, the group sat around the fireplace and enjoyed coffee, goodies and a friendly chat. (Thanks to Mrs. Elsie Smith for the above notes).

At Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, we have a system of awards of which the whole community should be proud. The program is a registered charitable organization and is operated by an organization called the Haliburton Highlands Scholarship Fund. A brief outline of the history of this organization will emphasize the involvement of the community in this very fine program.

The Haliburton County District High School opened in September 1953, replacing the Continuation Schools in Haliburton and Minden. When the Minden Continuation School closed in June, 1953 the Students' Council had some surplus funds. Mr. Clarence McInerney, Principal of the Minden Continuation School, decided that rather than this being turned over to a new Students' Council the money should be used to start some type of scholarship fund. From this idea, the Minden and then later Haliburton County Old Boys' Educational Foundation came into being. The organization loaned money to qualifying students, who upon completing school commenced to pay back the loan at low interest. (At this time the government was not involved in any student aid program so the local source of help was very worthwhile).

Clarence and other people scoured the area and got a number of citizens to form a committee. Some of the original members were: Mr. W. R. Curry, Mr. Harold Herlihey, Mrs. Phyllis Hodgson, Mr. J. McColl Prentice and Mrs. Clayton Rogers, along with other leading citizens. The first graduating class eligible for this aid was the class of 1954.

Mrs. Anna English was the first secretary-treasurer of this committee. Anna did all of the work involved in banking, making the loans, writing to students, reminding students they should be repaying their loans, thanking students for payment, etc. Many students wrote to Mrs. English and she formed lasting friendships with these young people.

In September 1958, Mr. Frank Litt - then Principal of the Secondary School - held a staff meeting and suggested that a scholarship fund should be created by the teachers and a budget set up for a committee to administer it. Mr. Litt said he would prefer native born Haliburton County teachers to form the committee as they would have a much better knowledge of the students and the needs of their families. Mr. Bud Thayer, Mr. Bob Herlihey and Mr. Doug Hodgson were chosen and the first meeting was held in the home of Bud Thayer. At that time it was decided to canvass leading citizens and service organizations within the county. Around this time, Mr. Harold Herlihey gave money in memory of his father - thus establishing the Scholarship - the F. D. Herlihey

Memorial Scholarship.

The first service organizations to become involved in the Scholarship Fund were the Rotary Clubs of Haliburton and Minden, followed not long after by the Order of the Eastern Star and the Haliburton Legion.

For some time the Haliburton Highlands Old Boys' Organization and the Scholarship Fund existed as separate entities - one being formed by the local citizens and the other by the secondary school teachers. However, in 1974 Mrs. English became ill and was forced to give up her work as secretary-treasurer for both the Old Boys' Organization and the Secondary School Scholarship Fund. At this time it was felt that the two should be amalgamated.

Mr. Bob Herlihy has been on the Scholarship Committee since its inception. Bob has done a tremendous amount of work in this field and is still very active as the chairman. Mrs. Louise Cooper who is presently secretary, has successfully carried out a mammoth task for many years and Mrs. Marilyn Kuno is the able treasurer.

Until 1970 the awards were presented at the annual Commencement Exercises. In that year the presentations were made after the Honours and Awards Banquet. Those invited to the banquet were: students receiving awards, honour students, and the donors, and the event was entirely separate from Commencement.

In 1974 the Old Boys' Loan Committee members were included in the banquet. The hosts for the Honours and Awards Banquet are the teachers of the secondary school and for many years now the teachers have contributed to the scholarship fund providing four scholarships, an engraved honour pin and bar for each student, and the funds necessary to operate the banquet that precedes these presentations.

All awards are designed to assist our graduates who are pursuing post-secondary studies, or to encourage all students to strive for excellence. This year the presentation of awards will be made following the banquet, at 8:00 p.m. in the school auditorium. A total of $5225 in scholarships and bursaries will be presented along with 91 honour pins and bars plus several prizes and trophies. A complete catalogue of all awards and requirements for the 1979-80 school year will be available on Awards night and from home form teachers after November 7.

Everyone in Haliburton County is cordially invited to join us in the school auditorium on Saturday, October 27 at 8:00 p.m. Also, if any individual or organization wishes to contribute in any way to this worthwhile program for our young people, please contact Mr. Mosgrove at the school - 457-2950.

Recycle it!

by Jane Selbie

With energy costs soaring, it wouldn't hurt anyone to review cooking practices to see if some conservation measures can be employed.

Sometimes you can cook with one element instead of two. A double boiler is a wise investment. You can have two vegetables going at once. Add a little salt to the lower pot, food cooks faster.

Boil enough water in a kettle to have your supply for vegetables, rice, tea and for scalding fruit.

Heat buns on the lid of your frying pan while dinner cooks thus avoiding the need to heat the oven.

If baking a cake, make a pudding too. It eliminates wasteful double heating of the oven. Use the drying heat from the oven to finish cooking puddings, drying bread for croutons or drying celery leaves. Don't preheat the oven until the last minute either.

Reassess your methods. It takes six to eight hours to make baked beans but you will have tasty ones in forty-five minutes in a pressure cooker. When using your pressure cooker it isn't necessary to keep the valve rocking. Once the temperature and pressure is built up, a low heat will maintain it.

It is surprising what you can do to eliminate unnecessary energy consumption in the kitchen. If you have some tips on this theme, please send them along to help others.

If you have noticed the absence of reader ideas, it's due to the lack of response! We are getting closer to the October 31 contest deadline and so far there have been no entries! Obviously your chances for winning are very great. Send us your suggestions and win the $15.00 prize which will help with Christmas shopping.

Send to Recycle It! Haliburton Echo, Box 360, Haliburton, Ontario, K0M 1S0.

Council outlines function, services

Editor's note: The following is a press release from the social planning council, and is included in the interests of public information.

Social Planning Council is a phrase that is sometimes misunderstood. The council is a group of volunteers of interested citizens from around the county who are anxious that only the best be available for the whole county.

In the past the council has been successful in discussing and promoting such things as Senior Citizens' facilities, Single Parent Groups, Alcohol and Drug Seminars, Children's Services, Welfare Services and others. At present the program for Home Support for shut-ins and handicapped persons is nearing finalization.

At each meeting there is a knowledgeable speaker on various topics in different phases of social interest for the betterment of the citizens across the county.

All are invited to attend the monthly meetings held in various communities. This month the meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 24, at 10:00 a.m. (Coffee at 9:30 a.m.) at the West Guilford Community Centre. Do come and be prepared to discuss the council's progress and plans for the future.

Haliburton Highlights

by Creighton Feir

During the past week we have noticed that some of the streets in the village have been without street lights and at various locations some of the lights apparently have blown out. Since we are paying a flat rate the council should make it a point to see that they are on and in operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Caines who have lived in Minden for the past few years have now moved to Haliburton.

Mr. Gaff Davies, a former Haliburton resident, was a visitor here one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Gelinas of Portage Lake have with them this week at the cottage, Mrs. Milicent Skett of Birmingham, England, and Mrs. Dorothy Hinks of Glasgow, Scotland, sisters of Mrs. Gelinas.

Glamorgan receives grant

Glamorgan Township has received a grant of $36,000 under the Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP). OHRP provides per capita grants to Ontario Municipalities to administer directly as loans to homeowner occupants to repair their houses to an acceptable municipal minimum standard.

Prime objective of the program is the correction of faulty structural and sanitary conditions and the upgrading of plumbing, heating, insulation and electrical systems of the owner occupant's home.

OHRP is directly oriented to low and moderate income homeowners with a maximum annual income of $12,500.

Loans of up to $7,500 can be given to eligible owner occupants to bring their homes up to the standards adopted by their municipality. A portion of the loan can be "forgiven" depending upon the income of the recipient. Interest rates vary from zero to eight percent, again depending on income.

Along the Trails

operator's course may have opportunity to do so.

Trails: Gord Brown, Roy Bates, Bob Pearson, Ed Pilcher, Dale MacDonald, Paul Pilon, Jim Chynoweth. Duties: to review and evaluate past progress in trail development throughout the club's sphere of operation; to determine areas of anticipated traffic increase and/or decline; to study the feasibility of further development in specific areas having regard to support from those areas and the club's abilities to expand; to organize volunteer work parties for the pre-season preparation of trails; to monitor the trail grooming effort and make weekly reports on trail conditions. Note: Two persons outside the board of directors are included in the trails committee to provide representation for specific areas of the county. These have volunteered their services. Further volunteers will be gladly accepted from any areas not adequately represented.

With the formation of committees out of the way, the board found time to consider several important resolutions. Here are a couple of them: "...That the front and back pages of the new map (fold out section of the Snowmobilers' Guide) be utilized for club promotion and kept free of paid advertising." The motion stemmed from the club's desire to give all advertisers fair and equitable treatment. A complete list of advertisers will appear as before on the inside pages of the fold-out section. "...That information boards be established in suitable locations, such as business establishments constituting first steps for visiting snowmobilers, to convey up-to-date information on snow conditions, lake conditions, grooming pattern, work projects in progress, and etc." Reasoning behind the motion is a sincere desire to improve communications with members. Both motions were duly approved.

manner of finding a solution to differences between teachers and school boards. Stuart Smith recalled the statement in 1973 by then Minister of Education Tom Wells: "I feel that it would be morally wrong to allow our young people to be victimised by school shutdowns with resultant disruption in the educational process just because a school board and its teachers cannot reach agreement on a contract."

On the eve of resumption of the Legislature, Stuart Smith had called a press conference at which he called for immediate legislation to end an elementary school teachers' strike in Peel Region and send that dispute to arbitration. He pointed out that the Liberal Party had changed its view on this question because of the harm done to school children when schools are closed by labour disputes.

Opposition Members also raised, among other matters, the situation with respect to health care in the province, the security of oil supplies for the forthcoming winter, and the government's policy with respect to French language education in Ontario.

Stuart Smith asked the Premier for his government's policy with respect to the decision of the Prime Minister of Canada to give control of off-shore oil and mineral resources to the coastal provinces. The Premier stated that the government of Canada could not, unilaterally, give up anything which constitutionally came within its jurisdiction.

New in Business

Down at Wentworth's Marine, on Highway 121 at the Allsaw Bridge an excellent reputation has been gained among truckers for Went's W.H. retreading on truck tires. Last week the first retreaded snowtires came out of the moulds for regular passenger car sizes. They are now prepared to save the same kind of money for car owners that they have been saving for truckers. Drop in and look them over.

The former Flamingo Cottages on #121 near Haliburton had seen better days before it was purchased by Ruth and Denver Lewis, but they have made tremendous improvements in these last few months and have now changed the name to The Old Apple Tree Resort. Plans are to continue to improve the facilities considerably, and while doing so Denver continues to commute to his job in Metro. We welcome this ambitious couple and welcome the improvements they are making to the facilities in the area. We hope you too will welcome them to our community.

Haliburton to receive sidewalks after highway reconstruction

Haliburton Village will get complete new sidewalks from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School along Highland Street (Highway 121) to Maple Street, and along a portion of Maple Street.

Work on the sidewalks, which will cost an estimated $60,000, will be carried out in conjunction with Ministry of Transportation and Communications repaving of the connecting link through the village. The $60,000 figure also includes the municipality's ten percent share of curb and gutter reconstruction accompanying the repaving.

Tenders for the repaving and repair work will be let in March of 1980 with work expected to begin in April. The project is expected to take close to a year to complete.
